OVERVIEW OF TOPIC

People Planning for Change

Are you wondering how a disruptive future might affect your workforce? During this Lab series we'll explore how to plan for external disruption with your staff in mind, identifying your goals and how to organise, communicate and manage change effectively with your team.

The sessions will be facilitated by Business & Management Consultant Sally Read who has over 18 years consulting experience across all sectors, focussing on people, processes and strategy, including five years as Organisational Development Director for Seasalt.

WHAT WILL BE COVERED?

Along with your peers, you'll:

- Explore your usual approach to planning for change – what have you done well and not so well in the past with regard to managing change?
- Discover how can you use this to plan for external disruption/Brexit? What processes do you have in place, how well are you prioritising?
- Identify your workforce's skills requirements – what are the risks and opportunities?
- Explore how are your staff feeling, what will be the impact on them/how well are you communicating to staff about risks and opportunities?
- Understand your goals and how to organise, communicate and manage change effectively
